THE ONE SENTENCE

A research database becomes an interactive map, and the map becomes remembrance in the city.

BEFORE YOU START

Open the deck, accept the site's cookie banner once, press L for German, plug in, test →.

WHAT SUCCESS LOOKS LIKE

A Träger, one dated introduction, one letter of support, plaque contacts, and a sponsor for a pilot street.

OPENING · 3 MIN

Slide 1

live homepage

What this is

- ▶ Let the dots animate for a few seconds before speaking.
- "This is the site as it is today. 10,021 Jewish-owned businesses in Berlin, placed on the streets where they stood."
- Say the one sentence from the band. That is the frame for everything that follows.
- You funded this a year ago on paper. Today you see it.

Slide 2

the foundation

Where the data comes from

- Source: Christoph Kreutzmüller, Ausverkauf (2012), and the HU Berlin database. The 16 narrated stories: Christine Fischer-Defoy and the Aktives Museum.
- Checked in 2026: 9,177 of 10,021 records match the source on every field. The rest were 861 field differences, 607 fixed automatically, 254 flagged for manual review.
- Three languages: German, English, Yiddish.
- ▶ Don't skip this slide. It is for the sceptics in the room.

Slide 3

what the archive holds

The numbers, honestly

- 10,021 documented. 8,838 placed on the map. 9,679 closed between 1933 and 1945.
- ▶ Name the gap before anyone asks: 1,183 have no resolvable historical address. We don't guess.
- Read the quote: behind every dot a family, a livelihood, a place where Berlin bought its bread.

LIVE DEMOS · 7 MIN

Slide 4

the map, live

Time as a slider

- ▶ Click into the map. Drag the year from 1933 to 1938. Point out: mint turns yellow, then orange.
- ▶ Click one cluster, open one business, read the name and the dates.
- Four states: active, under pressure, closed, and "building still standing today".
- ▶ Press F for fullscreen, Esc back. Click outside the map before using the arrow keys again. About 4 minutes.

Slide 5

the tour,
live

Fifteen storefronts, 1925 to 1945

- ▶ Click into the frame once. Then click the red markers on the timeline at the bottom; they jump straight to each store. Or scroll.
- ▶ Stop at station 3. Show the 1930 | Heute toggle top-left: same camera, today's buildings, Street View of the site now.
- This is the emotional peak. Say little. About 3 minutes.

WHAT WE ARE BUILDING · 8 MIN

Slide 6

archive,
street,
museum

Memory in three places

- Archive: online. Street: plaques, in progress. Museum: prototype.
- They reinforce each other: the plaque leads to the map, the map to the museum, the museum back to the street.
- Beyond Berlin: Frankfurt pilot, 167 businesses. The method transfers to any city with a source like Berlin's.

Slides 7–8

E. Braun &
Co.

One name

- Slide 7, 30 seconds: Viennese luxury store next to the Hotel Adlon, Unter den Linden. Customers included Käthe Dorsch and Paul Hindemith.
- Slide 8: 1914 opens · 1933 owners spared as Austrian nationals · 1938 arrested, forced sale · 1943 closed, seized, bombed · 1954 sale declared void. The Adlon covers the site today.
- Every dot has a story like this. For 16 we have told it; for 10,000 we know name, trade, address, dates.
- If asked about the plaque saying Nr. 75: that is the historical number; the block was renumbered.

Slide 9

plaques

Design, proof, prototype

- Two formats: 300 × 200 mm with story and storefront engraving; 300 × 100 mm compact with the four facts.
- 18 plaques with engraving files. 181 addresses on the contact list for owners and districts.
- Every plaque names four facts (name, trade, dates, place) and carries the context line: expropriated and liquidated under National Socialist rule. Stiftung Zurückgeben on every one.
- ▶ Status, in these words: designed, verified, prototypes made. No plaque is installed yet. Final fabrication waits on sites.

Slide 10

exhibit

The kiosk already runs

- The plan: walk-on floor map, three scales (case, room, hall) because we don't know which venue says yes.
 - The kiosk is not a rendering. Touch interface with attract loop and automatic reset runs in a browser today. It needs a room.
 - If asked to see it: K jumps to Appendix 1, the live kiosk.

Slide 11

classrooms

Free teaching material, grades 8 to 13

- "Six lessons from one archive": six single-lesson units with worksheets. "The street you walk on": a three-phase neighbourhood walk workbook.
- Three languages, no login, no cost. What is missing: a school that tries it and tells us what fails.

ACCOUNTABILITY AND PLAN · 6 MIN

Slide 12

what the grant built

Three promises, status of each

- 1 · The complete digital project: delivered. 2 · Plaque prototyping: delivered. 3 · Three to six metal plaques: prototypes made, final fabrication waits on sites.
- June to September: data verification, three languages, postwar layer and kiosk, classroom material, new homepage and 3D tour, plaques cut-ready.
- Four months, one developer, a tight hosting budget. All of it verifiable online.

Slide 13

next twelve months

Four steps and what each needs

- Q4: first plaques go up, three to five pilot addresses. Needs owners, district office, a workshop, a small installation budget.
- Q1: landing pages for museums and for teachers. Needs two conversations with venues, two with schools.
- Q2: kiosk in a partner venue. Needs a venue, a socket, a screen.
- Q3: Frankfurt complete, one more city begun. Needs a source and a local research partner.
- ▶ Stay honest: the landing pages are planned, not built. The kiosk exists, the venue doesn't.

Slide 14

funding

Six applications, one already out

- Bewegungsstiftung, €13,000, both applications submitted, awaiting decision.
- Hauptstadtkulturfonds, deadline 1 October: the key near-term one; individuals eligible.
- LOTTO-Stiftung Berlin (rolling, 2027) · EVZ Bildungsagenda, sketch due 1 November, needs a partner organisation to hold it · Prototype Fund (Oct–Nov, optional) · Yiddish Book Center for the translation tool.
- ▶ None of these is addressed to you. What would help: a partner organisation for EVZ, and a second pair of eyes on the Hauptstadtkulturfonds application before 1 October.
- If asked about fees: project management sits inside each application as a personnel cost; there is no separate request.

Slide 15

team

Who is doing this

- Sam Frons, initiator, design and development. Chandra Brooks, fundraising and project management. Keep it to two sentences.
- Research partners on screen: Kreutzmüller, Fischer-Defoy and Aktives Museum, HU Berlin, and you.

Slide 16

where we need you

Not money. Ideas and doors.

- ▶ Open the cards one at a time with keys 1 to 4. Read the yellow line on each aloud, then stop talking. Tolerate the silence.
- 1 Museums and memorial sites: a curator who will try the kiosk for 30 minutes. Jewish Museum, Topography of Terror, district museums, Stolpersteine.
- 2 Schools and teachers: a history teacher who will say honestly what fails in the classroom. Landesinstitut, subject associations.
- 3 Plaques in the city: one property owner on Unter den Linden or Friedrichstraße who says yes. Which district office is known to be open?
- 4 Press, research, funding programmes: a programme officer who tells us which application not to write. Which desk would show the map, not just mention it?
- ▶ Write every name down as it is said. Then: "The next slide makes this concrete."

Slide 17

five asks

Concrete, with dates

- ▶ Read the five in order; the order is the priority. Pause after each.
- 1 A Träger. A non-profit Verein or Stiftung willing to be the legal applicant, and at what overhead. Several funds cannot accept an individual, so this decides which deadlines are real.
- 2 One introduction by 1 November to Centrum Judaicum, Aktives Museum e.V. or Mitte Museum. The EVZ sketch needs an organisational partner. Say the date.
- 3 A written statement of support or data cooperation from Christoph Kreutzmüller or Aktives Museum. One phone call; worth more in an application than any description of the platform.
- 4 Plaque contacts: Hausverwaltungen, Bezirksämter, anyone who has run a wall-mounted installation, and a fabricator. Owner consent plus, in protected areas, Denkmalschutz; slower than Stolpersteine. No per-site price until a fabricator has quoted.
- 5 Money, in two parts: one pilot street, about ten plaques, sponsored by a named person or foundation; and a small unrestricted sum for coordination while the big applications are pending. Say it plainly, then be quiet.
- If asked for amounts: plaque price exists only after item 4; the coordination figure is Chandra's to name. Close: one commitment per person; we confirm in writing within 48 hours.
